First Up, Then Down
Promising the President
Some New Taxes

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

OUR BUYING AND SELLING minds seem not even to know what they think is going to happen, here or in Europe. One day they buy, next day they sell. The dollar goes down. Europe says it is unkind. Then it goes up, and European monies drop.

Wheat dropped yesterday, stocks also, as the dollar went up. All that might well puzzle the earnest speculator, seeking to "make bread for the little ones." Perhaps the best plan is not to be a speculator, for the present, content to earn dollars a few at a time, and keep them. Today New York's Stock Exchange will rest. Monday it resumes regular business hours. Then, perhaps, conditions will become more normal.

In the meanwhile, one thing is accomplished. The London conference has gone home, and the nations have learned that this country can attend to its own money, without outside help.

Thousands of letters from the President, suggesting wide employment of labor, were received "cheerfully" by employers yesterday. In two boroughs of Greater New York alone, Manhattan and the Bronx, 300,000 letters, marked "The White House, Official Business," were distributed, one to every employer of three or more persons.

In reply to White House letters, employers, of whom there are 1,500,000 in the New York area alone, are expected to pledge themselves to President Roosevelt's plan to increase employment and restore prosperity in a hurry.

There will be a follow-up system, to make sure that employers making pledges and displaying the government insignia, are not the Blue Eagle do not forget their promises.

Union labor organizations may present a problem for the President's commission, by asserting their right to overrule codes and other arrangements made by the government. The ready Silk Workers' Union has called a strike of 70,000 workers, saying it wants and will accept no textile code.

It is not probable, however, that any private agency will take precedence of the government in authority. A fight with an individual employer is, in many ways, unlike a quarrel with the government.

Gen. Charles W. Berry, comptroller of the city of New York, who went abroad to study foreign taxation, discovers things encouraging to his own and other American citizens. For instance, in Paris, electric signs are heavily taxed, even doctors and lawyers pay a tax on the small signs they display. An automobile owner pays about $100 tax on a small car and up to $250 on a big car. Every taxicab driver must pay a tax of about 50 cents a day, besides taxes on gasoline and oil. Every radio set is taxed $2.00.

It costs money to live in Paris, where you pay separate taxes on the number of windows, awnings and balconies on your building.

Short names are desirable, for merchants are according to the number of letters in signs over their doors. Of all these taxes, the ancient tax on portes et fenestras ("doors and windows") has done the greatest harm, apart from the money involved. The tax on windows, based originally on the assumption that sunlight and air belong to the king and should be paid for, has caused the flight of people, in France and other European countries, to sleep in rooms with imitation windows painted on, with no openings to admit fresh air.

In Germany mothers, especially peasant mothers, are urged to produce more and better German babies, because the army

Walsh, Coolidge Overridden by Young Jim Roosevelt

By JOHN T. LAMBERT
The Democrats are split wide open, four ways from Sunday.

Party patronage has cut them into rival, jealous, warring factions.

The appointment of Attorney Joseph P. Carney of Gardner to be internal revenue collector, over the heads of Senators David I. Walsh and Marcus A. Coolidge, intensifies the bitter struggles that mark the party leaders with the scars of disappointment.

A couple of United States Senators, in any state are supposed to know what is in all about. Walsh and Coolidge have been treated like a pair of lowly corporals.

Ex-Mayor George Seweney of Gardner was appointed as assistant attorney-general of the United States, at $5000 per year. Walsh and Coolidge heard about it when it was over. "Young Jim" Roosevelt put Seweney across without their knowledge or consent.

Walsh supported ex-Congressman Michael F. Phelan of Lynn for Massachusetts director of the Home Loan Bank. "Young Jim" happened to be with Walsh in this fight. John H. Pabey, however, wanted the place for Charles F. Cotter of Lynn. He went to the White House, with the result that Cotter got the place.

ROURKE'S ON RETIRED LIST

Public Works Commissioner Joseph A. Rourke, who will succeed a dispute over Hyde Park streets is retiring immediately from the city's service. Mayor Curley announced today.
Rourke, a veteran of many years in the city's employ, will take a four weeks' leave of absence and then go on the retired list, Sept. 1. The reason is ill health, according to Mayor Curley, who marked:
"Rourke has been a great asset to the city, saving the taxpayers an average of over $500,000 a year, and he never played a favorite, but he was a political liability to me because of his frankness."
Christopher J. Carven, now deputy commissioner, will succeed Rourke. Carven will be 70 in December and will have been in the retirement list then.

'Not Afraid,' Says Widow; Will Tell Truth About 'Bill'

This Is a Terrible Ordeal She Says, But Her Faith in Outcome Has Not Been Shattered by States' Attack

EXCLUSIVE!

Copyright, 1933, Boston Evening American
The Boston Evening American requested Francis E. Rafter, counsel for Jessie B. Costello, to get from 'The Smiling Widow' an authoritative statement of her reactions to her trial for murder, and her future hopes. Here it is.

It's going to be my turn next week. For two weeks now I have been forced to listen to what the state claims happened to my husband—to sit there and listen to the bare-faced lies of one man, Edward J. McMahon—knowing that if the jury were to believe everything they heard my liberty, or my life even, was endangered.

That is a terrible ordeal for an innocent woman. It is one I have tried to face with a smile and with a faith in God that everything will come out all right in the end.

I have not lost my faith. I have never lost it. I never will.

Once in a while I have lost my smile, but is it any wonder?

Two weeks behind me and all that the state can say is nearly done. Then it's going to be my turn.

I shall take the stand to tell everything I know of poor Bill's death with full knowledge that I expect no quarter from the state, but I'm not afraid.

Few women have been through what I have been through—sorrow and lying gossip and inquisition and finally, arrest and imprisonment for four months for killing the man I loved, the father of my children.

I don't know how I have done so well, except that there is something within me that keeps saying: "Smile, Jessie. Hold your head up. You're innocent and it will be proved."

It's my turn coming and when I've finished I know that I'm going home to my children again, not an altogether happy woman, but one from whom has been lifted any little stigma of suspicion of the awful charge for which I am on trial.

fact that New England employees will be signed up about 100 per cent by the time the code goes into effect Aug. 1.

Thousands already have signed blanks and turned them in at the various branches of the postoffice to be forwarded to Washington. The cards were arriving so fast that authorities had lost accurate count of them.

Butler, however, did announce that the first Great Boston team to sign the new agreement was Alvin Warshaw, of Quincy, treasurer of the Warshaw Cleaning Co. in Milton.

Distribution of these posters will begin about Aug. 1, Butler announced. The first of them will come through the post office department. Other arrangements for distributing them will be announced later.

WARN OF ROGUE CARDS

Managers, merchants and other employers are warned against buying or using any cards to sell them posters to the Better Business Bureau, which has agreed to do police work for the N. R. A. in stopping out racketeering in this league.

FULL CO-OPERATION

Business organizations throughout New England were sending the local office full cooperation in the matter of settling the pledges in Washington, Butler said.

He stated that the office has been denied by the N. R. A. the right to use the Chamber of Commerce has loaned a staff of office workers to many typewriters and telephones, and that Roger Watson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, has extended his services free of charge to handle advertising and publicity for N. R. A. in New England.

Codes Battle Nears Over Open Shop

Washington, July 29 (AP)—The battle between open-shop employers and labor unions in the framing of codes under the recovery act is nearing a close. The detailed rules were laid down to govern the President's blanket code.

With employers and labor preparing to come to grips in hearings on the iron and steel code, the issue of the open shop is being fought in a large group of bituminous coal operators filed an "open shop" code.

In a far-reaching decision affecting the blanket code, the Recovery Administration held that union employers must accept the terms of the code in exchange for the right to operate an open shop.

Here, too, another labor issue was sharply divided. The president of the American Federation of Labor, declared that labor would fight, lowering its head through adoption of the 35 and 40 hour week provided in the blanket code.

Meanwhile the Recovery Administration served notice today that the President's voluntary recovery agreement was not signed by thousands of business men, who, not in haste, a "share-of-work" movement with the wages of present workers divided.

Similarity between employer and employee is now the big thing. To assure success of the President's recovery program there must, as a necessity, be some changes in the way the business and the employees. There will be some changes made in working agreements.

I believe that the labor leaders realize this as well as the men who employ labor. The union men know

U. S. Jobs Leader Ex-Football Star

An Arbor, Mich., July 29 (AP)—Gen. Thomas Stevens Hammond, in charge of employment in the national industrial recovery administration, announced today that the "They Shall Not Pass" sign of industrial recovery was the football team in 1905.

Couch Fielding H. Vost recalls him as "one of the best offensive and defensive full-backs I have ever seen," six feet tall, 185 pounds, "never took time out and never was hurt."

Among a greater number.

At the same time it made clear that not all more substantially paid employees may expect to get as much of their present time is out. A reasonable readjustment is required, its general trend upward, but actual terms are left to the employer unless it develops the latter has a "peculiar sense of justice." Then the administration will step in to see that the spirit of the agreement is lived up to.

200,000 MORE AT WORK, PAY UP

Lowell, July 29.—The first two weeks under the cotton code work the mills have added nearly 200 new names to their payroll and car loadings from Lowell have taken a jump of 24 1/2 per cent over the corresponding time in June.

The two commercial banks, which make up the greater part of the payroll for Lowell industries, report a remarkable increase in the total amount of pay checks distributed to workers.

READJUSTMENT PLANS

The interpretations of the voluntary agreement were given by Thomas R. Hammond, executive director of the re-employment drive and Donald Kiebing, general counsel of the administration.

They provided specifically that the individual employee who believes the agreement will cause him to lose his job, or that of a particular provision by submitting a petition, approved by the local office, to the N. R. A. If he has one, otherwise, to the chamber of commerce or to a designated representative of the N. R. A. with his signed agreement, and a promise to abide by N. R. A.'s final decision.

Auto Industry Code Breaks Union Power

Washington, July 29 (AP)—Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, said today that the automobile industry in the trade practice code submitted by the automobile industry agreed to be in accord with the industrial law's labor requirement.

The paragraph inserted by the automobile men specified that the employers and unions must agree to continue the open shop policy for existing and future employment of workers would be on their merit and without regard for affiliation or non-affiliation with any union.

Johnson said he understood this to be exactly what the law required in guaranteeing to employers the right to bargain collectively, without prejudice or discrimination based on union affiliation.

The administrator called attention to the fact that the auto code, in practically all of the provisions of the country now have joined the industrial control movement.

Questioned about Henry Ford's position, Johnson said: "I do not know whether Mr. Ford is a member or not a member of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, but I know that he personally some time ago was in the line of the recovery act, and he would support the recovery act."

Johnson said that once the code was approved, the auto industry would have to abide by its terms under the industrial law. He said the signature on the code represented, exclusive of the Ford plant, 98 per cent of the industry.

Johnson said that the code would have to be approved by the President's recovery agreement campaign, Johnson said.

ALICE BRIDGES WINS 880 IN SWIM CAR

Part of 20,000 Crowd at American - Advertiser Swim Fete, and First Winner

SARAH DUFFREY, HELEN JACOBS TIED AT NEXT

22,000 CROWD LINES SHORE FOR RACES

Before a record crowd of 22,000 persons, Alice Bridges won the 880 yard race in the American-Advertiser swim fete, which opened this afternoon on the beach at the Boston Public Gardens. The race was won by Bridges, a member of the Boston Public Gardens swimming club, in 11 minutes and 45 seconds. She was followed by Sarah Duffrey and Helen Jacobs, who tied for second place in 12 minutes and 15 seconds. The race was the first of a series of events which will continue through the week.

MISS CHASE COLLAPSES
Priscilla Chase, 15, collapsed while swimming in the 100 yard race. She was rescued by lifeguards and taken to the City Hospital.

EILEEN MCCARTHY WINS
Little Eileen McCarthy of the B. S. A. won the 100 meter freestyle race for girls 12 years and under. Margaret Davis, also of the B. S. A., was second, and Mary Harriott of Dorchester finished third. Time 1 minute, 32 seconds.

The great popularity of the annual Boston American-Advertiser swimming carnival is attested by the huge gathering that lined the shore and waded into the water at Columbus Park Beach, South Boston, this afternoon, to see the cream of New England's mermen.

Miss Duffrey won third place in the 880 yard race. She was followed by Helen Jacobs, who tied for second place. The race was the first of a series of events which will continue through the week.

It's easy enough to understand about the cameras. But how could bicycles be used to make a monkey of Adolf?

FEARLESS JOURNALISM

(Mumsey, Mo. News)
The traveling evangelist who has been conducting a revival at Arcadia did not have very much success. Like most evangelists, he limned the church boards and bridge players so hard that the women, resenting it, did not invite him out to any chicken dinners. His criticism made a lot of folks who had intended to attend the meetings sulky and they stayed away. This evangelist may learn that folks do not go to meetings to be abused.

In those times, many a man has hit upon some simple new idea to tide him over the depression. For example, Ballou Danks, above, makes a comfortable income by selling itch powder to bankers. The banker sprinkles the itch powder on his dome—thus making it easy to remember always to scratch his head before turning down a customer's request for a loan.

Mayor and Public Works New Subway Should Be Built NOW

Mayor Curley deserves public commendation for the active and intelligent manner in which he has taken charge of the public works program in accordance with the national plan urged by the President. The Mayor has devised a program of public works for the city of Boston that includes the new Huntington Avenue subway from Copley Square to Longwood Avenue.

This subway will have to be constructed at some time to afford actual rapid transit to the people on the southwest side of Boston and to eliminate the traffic congestion on the surface of Huntington Avenue.

The circumstances all suggest that the construction should be done NOW.

The national government will pay thirty per cent of such projects and will aid in financing the balance of seventy per cent. Contracts could be effected before the prices of building materials go hiking. Producing and compensatory labor would be afforded for probably 2000 men who have been obliged to resort to city welfare for their subsistence.

The owners of the Boston Elevated have hesitated to ratify this subway development in the past because it would result for the subway must come out of current revenue. But the conditions are now more favorable. Car-riding has increased and will continue to increase as work becomes more plentiful and prosperity more general. The government contribution will relieve the extent of the subway rental. Moreover, the future of the Elevated must depend more largely upon its rapid-transit lines and the Elevated must build for the future when the opportunity is most advantageous, as now.

Another fact not to be lost sight of is that the enhanced value of the property along the Huntington Avenue will make it more profitable to its owners and to the City Treasury in new taxable income.

In the light of all these favorable conditions, the construction of the new Huntington Avenue subway should be begun without intolerable delay. Let the dirt fly.

Now We May Get Results Strong Men on Ely's Crime Commission

The Crime Commission appointed by Governor Ely seems to be just what the doctor ordered.

Robert T. Bushnell is a vigorous man and a hard fighter who gives no quarter and asks for none. He has a District Attorney and knows the ways of crime and criminals. He can be relied upon to ascertain why hardened criminals have been repeatedly released by the courts and have gone forth with gun in hand to rob the public of life and property.

General Charles H. Cole, before his eminent record in the war, was a Police Commissioner of Boston at a time when the Police Department was efficiently managed and commanded public respect. He should be relied upon to ascertain "What Runs the Boston Police Department and Why?" He should be able to detect the alliance between corrupt or negligent police and the underworld and to destroy this liaison if Boston is to be freed from domination by the underworld and notorious racketeering.

Daniel J. Lynch is an experienced lawyer and is a member of the Grievance Committee of the Boston Bar Association. Perhaps there will develop upon him the responsibility of exposing the fixt lawyers and the fixt politicians who protect the underworld in its depredations upon the public.

This Commission is confronted by an important and a difficult task. It has been selected to investigate and to expose the causes of the notorious wave of crime, banditry and racketeering. Many obstacles will be placed in its path by politicians, unscrupulous lawyers and gangland chieftains who have power and influence.

The public will expect these men to brand the public enemies, to give the police a thorough investigation instead of the customary whitewash and to explore the reasons why crime and vice do as they please in the open. If they do less than that, their service to the public will be construed as an utter failure.

Three Billion Glasses Without the Speakeasy Trade

A man with a fair for statistics says that the American people have drunk in excess of three thousand million glasses of beer since it became legal.

Next we expect to hear the fellow who will tell us if the glasses were placed end to end how many times they would girdle the world.

These facts might entertain if not satisfy us.

We should like to hear how many people have been put to work by legal beer, how much grain has been bought from the farmers, how much taxes have been paid to a government treasury that was all outgo in the futile task to enforce prohibition.

These achievements have been vast.

Even they have been slight in comparison to the satisfaction of the man who knows he can have a glass of beer when he wants it, without peeking through the peephole of a speakeasy.

Family Life Suffers Women Preferred to Men by Some Mills

Some of the mills are employing women, rather than men, to take advantage of the new industrial recovery code.

We hear instances of able-bodied men who go to the mill gates and are refused. But their women are taken in to work, even at the expense of leaving their children at home.

The work is given to them in order that the mills may pay a wage, a legal wage, much lower than if the men were called back in the factories.

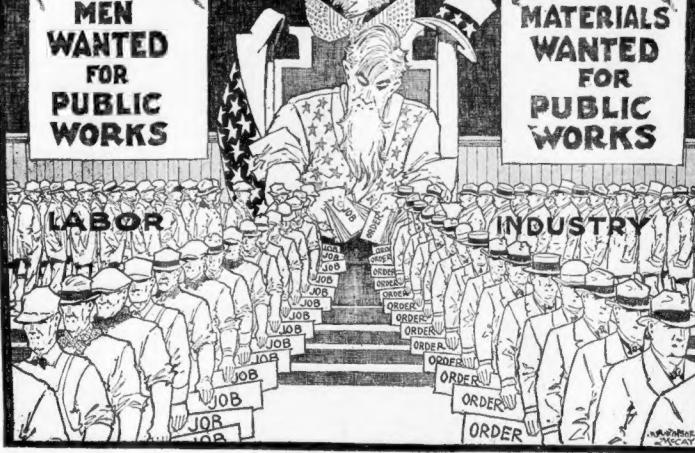

The policy is not only injurious to the morals of our people and destructive of family life, but also un sound economically.

The mills should learn that we must have a Nation of well-paid workers who can become satisfactory customers of the products of all our industries.

O. O. McIntyre New York Day by Day

Watching Rain

NEW YORK, July 29.—A fierce rain thudding down. Nothing more soothing than watching rain from a cozy window seat. Every home should have a deflated balloon for shower gazing.

A cozy day, but now mid-night and big drops beat down. The rain, rain, rain, rain, rain! About the only thing left that is simple is rain. Q. Perhaps down a book to watch the rain. O. O. McIntyre. One George Buckley told me to read "Little Man, What Now?" A drama of two deflated balloons in love written with a sparkle of Ascham poetry. All my life I've tried to write better. And failed.

The most poignant line in literature encompassed two words: "Jesus Wept." And how narrow was the Sermon on the Mount and Lincoln's Gettysburg address. C. K. Chesterton sits down to every new model declaring "it will be brief." But about rain—

Willie Callender once appeared in a frolicsome cantata "Caught in the Rain." The plot is vague but the title is a home. Catching the success of Jeanne Eagles' play, "Rain," was half in its title and the constant downpour. An editor tells me poems ticking of rain always click with readers.

Of all phenomena rain has the most superbly ordered rhythm. No matter what one writes about it, however, the contrast is jerky. For instance: This ramble.

San Antonio, Texas, and San Diego, Calif., have the most salubrious climate the world over. I enjoy both and have frequently hymned their praise. Yet more fascinating than either is Harve, French where it drizzles or pours 300 days of the year. The late Grant Clarke taught me to walk in the rain. It should be done slowly with pocketed hands and head down when a storm broke he would quit some night club and round the reservoir in this fashion and come back dripping with water—and sometimes bring "Dirty Hands, Dirty Face" home on such a launch. My famous song.

Have you noticed at sea how sailors love rain? Even with prohibition near they will stand soporific in a deluge. Afterward their soaked faces Victor Herbert would light rain. Several times exposing him to the torrid sun and rain with pneumonia. Earl Carroll

Blaming Pres. Roosevelt

WELL, now that we've calmed and shouted and hung a lot of wreaths, when we are going on to the next business in hand? When we are going to start blaming President Roosevelt? What? Don't I like our President? I am his staunch and loyal supporter, and I don't care to remain so, regardless. But I have no such expectations concerning my fellow citizens. For we American ALWAYS crucify our heroes. It's the inevitable aftermath of our will and intense enthusiasm.

So, when will we start working on F. D. R.? When will be begin to say he was just a "flash in the pan"? When will we begin to sneer at his business methods, and to hint that he is a "bunch of old-fashioned can't-get-on-enough-for-the-good-old-Constitution"? No, we must make us individually uncomfortable.

Will he be prompt—and plenty. Never was a New Deal for America so necessary, so inevitable. Never has an Old Deal wrought such misery on the average citizen. All which we are eagerly admitting, but which we are not enumerating, those interminable, bitterly, to our own particular discomfort.

Ready for a New Deal? Of course we are! God bless the good, brave, kind, wise man who has promised us one! Hip-hip-hooray for our swell President!

But how long will those hips and hoors last? I, individually, don't know. But everything looks rosy for us, respectively.

But that can't possibly be long. For the course a New Deal needed, the more Cain is in going to raise when it comes. And it will be merely going to raise Cain with the privileged and powerful.

Restoration

We're getting back our confidence! We're coming out of gloom! We're working in the gardens where the flowers of summer bloom!

We had our fit of dreading, and we're on the road again To the better days before us and the old-time faith in men.

We're getting back our courage! We have struggled and we've won! We have seen our treasures vanish; we've been bitterly assailed; But our heads are high this morning and in field and shop and mart

There is good old rugged honor, with the brave old fighting heart.

We're getting back our mettle; you can sense it everywhere. There's a surging of the spirit 'gainst the sweeping tide of care. Now we're done with dismal doubting, on the high road and the low

Men are working for the future with the faith of long ago.

Listen, World! By Elsie Robinson

Blaming Pres. Roosevelt

It's going to raise Cain with ALL of us—with the most personal departments of our lives, as well as the public functions of our government. And the reason's plain. The old deal affected everybody, everything. If the New Deal is to clean up the old deal, it, too, must touch everybody, everything.

And that isn't so funny, is it? It's all right for the government to reach out and grab the Rich Fellow by the neck, but when it comes to grabbing the Poor Fellow—WHEN IT MEANS MEDDLING IN YOUR AND MY PRIVATE AFFAIRS—that's different. Then we squeal!

And with that squeal we expose our true position. For, in spite of our cheers, we really don't want a New Deal for America. We're all for a plan that makes the other fellow loosen up on his ancient greed and grab BUT WE DON'T WANT ANYTHING THAT WILL DISTURB OUR OWN GREED OR SPOIL OUR CHANCES OF GETTING A SELVES SOME DAY.

Yet that is exactly what is going to happen. It is going to land on ALL graft. It is going to land on the selfishness and silliness, the ignorance and stubbornness of Big Men and Little Men alike. It's going to make ALL of us "our brother's keeper," whether we like it or not. And it's a cinch we won't!

For what tidy housewife wants to share her guest room with a tattered tramp she's never seen? Or what ambitious worker wants to share his job with some duffer whose name he's never heard? Yet things like these, and even more startling, are going to come to pass in the New Deal.

And then what? Then, if we run true to form, we'll turn on the man who had the vision and courage to start it all—and blame him for our "bad luck" and whine for the "good old days" and raise Cain generally!

That's what is going to happen if we Americans run true to form. But we're not running true to form. I shot that we won't. But miracles HAVE happened! It is possible that one can happen now!

When things start crashing this next winter and fall—when we see the old Star of Nations and the Winter holidays going out on the big wheels of a snowstorm—we can stand by our guns, and cheer our New Dealer as we're cheering him now.

Here's a hunch. Call this article—keep it for eight months—and then see what's happened to the New Deal. For by then the whole world would know what the New Deal game sports who mean what we vote, or whether we're just bunch of old cry-babies who can't dish it out but can't take it!

Alfred Dreyfus, French Military Martyr; Sinking of Titanic Told by Rescuing Captain

By Edwin C. Hill

Sitting these summer evenings on the Grand Staircase of Newfoundland, the Boulevard des Italiens, in Paris, is a white-haired, slightly hunched, old man with a cane. He is Alfred Dreyfus, the French military martyr who was rescued from the ice-choked waters of the Titanic.

When the story of the sinking of the Titanic was first told, Dreyfus was the first man to be rescued from the ice-choked waters of the Titanic. He was the first man to be rescued from the ice-choked waters of the Titanic.
